Subject: Civil Suits Settlement

I'm not sure if this is the appropriate address to send this to, but I had to voice my opinion, so here goes:

Regarding the recently annouced settlement of civil suits in the Microsoft case, I am appalled. While donations to charitable organizations could be useful, it is unbelievable that the DOJ is perpetuating the Microsoft monopoly. It's as if the judicial system has confirmed that they are a monopoly, and someone has decided that it's okay.

Where is the remedy for the people? I can't believe that the last three years of judicail proceedings has been to give Microsoft a slap on the wrist and a pat on the back!

Something else must be done! Is there a forum where remedies are discussed without the counsel of the convicted?

Thanks for your time,
Scott Hoffman
